Dear Mayor Siddiqui, Vice-Mayor Mallon, City Councillors and City Manager:

I am writing in support of the Tobin School/VLUS project. Cambridge has a unique opportunity in this moment: to not only build a net-zero school, but also to address increasing enrollment in our public schools and move us forward in our quest for universal preschool. This is a critical matter of equity in our city, and we should not turn away from it.

As the parent of a 7 month old baby, I'm considering my options for affordable preschool choices. While I would love to stay in the wonderful community of Cambridge, I'm not sure as a single-income household that we'll be able to do so if there aren't more affordable options. This expansion would be life changing for many families in the Cambridge community, and allow for families like mine to not move to another more affordable city.

We know that high-quality early education is vital to a child's long-term academic success. As a city, we have been discussing this issue for years. And yet we still have many families who are unable to access those opportunities for their own children, through the luck of their birthdays or lottery numbers. As I'm sure you know, private preschool options in the area are simply out of reach for many families. We now have a great opportunity to move us closer to truly providing equal educational opportunity in this city, and we should take it.

I know that opposition has been raised because of concerns about traffic and the number of children who would be served at this location. As with everything, we have to ask ourselves what we want to prioritize. Is congestion during limited hours more important than early childhood education? When we say "there will be too many children in this building," what does that mean for the families whose children we refuse to make room for? Of course, we must do all that we can to address unintended consequences and make sure that we minimize impact on abutters, but the ultimate priority should be providing our children and families with the opportunity for success. We talk often about an achievement gap in our public schools, but what we really have is an opportunity gap. It begins in preschool, and we have the chance to move toward closing it. Let's have the courage to do that, and ensure that all our children have access to a high quality, affordable, early childhood experience.

Thank you.

Fiona Adler, Cambridge resident and parent of a young baby
