

COMMUNITY RESOURCES UPDATED APRIL 2017

The West Cambridge Youth Center on Huron Street and Walden Square Apartments on Concord Street are now at increased risk for flooding. The West Cambridge Youth Center (S14) has been added at risk for flooding for 2030 and 2070. The Walden Square Apartments (H17-b) has been added at risk for flooding for 2070.

Cambridge's places of worship, schools, daycare centers, and other community centers provide critical places for residents to connect with each other.

The City examined the extent to which community resources are at risk of harm from climate stressors as a proxy for measuring harm to social support systems. Figure 27 indicates that many of the City's community resources are at risk of both flooding and extreme heat.

Affordable housing, public schools, daycare and youth centers, pharmacies, food pantries, and municipal resources provide important support services that need to be operational when climate stressors impact the City.

Other priority public resources that will be included in the Climate Change Preparedness and Resilience Plan include:

- Municipal and federal buildings such as City Hall, and its satellites, schools, daycare and youth centers, libraries, and post offices are Cambridge's traditional places where people can gather to ask for and provide help.
- Public pools, sprinkler parks, and other open spaces are public places where residents can go to cool off during heat waves.

The map of the Community Resources Priority Areas (Figure 28) illustrates which resources are most at risk of failure with greatest impact to vulnerable populations.
