Guest Speaker: Jeff Parenti of the Department of Traffic, Parking and Transportation (TPT) discussed new, vibrotactile push button integrated accessible pedestrian signals (APS). He reported that there are 135 regular traffic signals in Cambridge, some of which have an audible signal installed in at least one crosswalk. However, these audible units that have been installed in the past have had limited success; in particular, there have been a lot of noise complaints, as the speakers are mounted about eight feet off the ground. Additionally, it can be very difficult to tell which signal is emitting the audible cross signal. Mr. Parenti said that TPT is now moving towards the new APS, where the speaker is mounted directly on to the pole about 3 feet above the ground. These new APS contain a vibrotactile arrow pointing in the direction of the crosswalk on the push button. Additionally, the button housing emits a locator tone indicating its location to users who are blind or partially sighted. When the walk signal comes on, the button will vibrate in addition to emitting a designated audible signal indicating that it is safe to cross the street. These units are customizable, allowing for any sound file to be used. TPT has ordered 16 APS for a pilot program to see how they work. In addition, all new construction will contain these APS units and existing old-style APS will be replaced. TPT would like CCPD input on priority locations for the installation of the APS.

Film Series Update: Bet MacArthur reported that the next screening, The Sessions, is scheduled for 1-4pm on Saturday, September 21 at the Abilities Expo Boston, with Rachel Tanenhaus as the guest speaker. Following that, there will be a screening of Silver Linings Playbook at the Cambridge Main Library on Saturday, November 2.

Kate Thurman reported creating a brochure for the Disability Reframed Film Series.

Chair's Report: Miriam Cooper reported that this year's October Disability Employment Month event will be a Disability Mentoring Day, on which Cambridge residents with disabilities will have the opportunity to shadow certain City employees for a few hours. A letter will go out to all of the Cambridge Department Heads describing the program and requesting that interested staff sign up to participate. The MA Rehabilitation Commission will recruit the job seekers and assist with placement according to mutual interest.

Ms. Cooper also reported that she is representing CCPD on the Cambridge Transit Advisory Committee, which seeks to make public transportation robust and accessible in Cambridge

Police Community Liaison Update: Deputy Superintendent Jack Albert said that the Police Department is increasing enforcement of bicycle traffic rules, particularly around crosswalks. He also reported that the PD is looking into joining a regional bicycle enforcement committee, with more cities and towns starting to enforce bicycle traffic rules.

Sidewalk Update: JoAnn Haas reported scheduling a meeting for Thursday, October 3 from 12:30-2pm to discuss snow removal plans for the upcoming snow season. The meeting will be held in the 4th floor conference room of 344 Broadway and will bring together neighborhood association representatives and public works staff.

Ms. Hass said that it is important to report potholes to DPW before the snow starts. There is an iReport smart phone app for Android and iOS for reporting potholes and missing sidewalk bricks.

Executive Director's Report: Michael Muehe said that the City has a work group that is developing ways to increase access to public restrooms. The group would like to use the new accessibility symbol created by the Accessible Icon Project (www.accessibleicon.org) on signage indicating accessible restrooms. The group asked Mr. Muehe if it would be okay to substitute this icon, a more dynamic stick figure, suggesting forward movement, for the universal symbol of access, which is a static, passive stick figure.

He also reported working with Joanna Berton Martinez on applying for an Arts Council grant to expand on CCPD's PSA project, creating 30 minute episodes on the arts and disability for CCTV's BeLive program.

Sandy Durmaskin and Miriam Cooper volunteered to be part of the work group for this project. The group is meeting on Monday, October 7 at 6pm.

Project Coordinator's Report: Kate Thurman reported creating a Facebook page for CCPD, in addition to CCPD's Twitter account. It can be accessed at www.facebook.com/CambCPD. She also reported creating new brochures for CCPD and for the Disability Reframed Film Series.

Meeting adjourned at 7:40pm.

Respectfully Submitted,
Kate Thurman, Disability Project Coordinator
